Course Title	Honors English II
Course Code	INGL 3012
Contact Hours/Credits	Three hours per week/ three (3) credits
Requisites	INGL 3012

Course Description

The course emphasizes the development of listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills through the study of the four genres of literature, fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and drama. Fiction and poetry are covered in English 3011, while drama and nonfiction are covered in English 3012.

Objectives

General:

Students will further develop reading, writing, listening, and speaking skills in English acquired in English 3011. In addition, they will continue to use and develop critical thinking skills by analyzing relevant topics and issues dealt with in select literary texts, and reacting to them in an open forum of ideas. As in English 3011, classroom activities in English 3012 will continue to be directed toward improving students' awareness of the importance of literature as a means of communicating cultural values and promoting awareness and change in society.

Specific:

By the end of the course students will be able to:

A) Drama

1. Reading

Analyze the elements of drama in select plays.

- Identify salient themes in select plays under discussion.
- Research the authors' lives to determine the degree in which the historical background of their work may or may not influence their ideas on given topics.
- Use computer technology to search for information on authors, dramas, and critical expositions about these.
- Review critical commentaries and discuss their theoretical value or use.

2. Writing

- Internalize grammar basics (subject-verb agreement, pronoun agreement, sentence combining).
- Use the correct structure of the paragraph (overall organization, well-defined topic sentences, effective support, transitional phrases, relevant conclusions, unity and coherence).
- Write an essay including proper formulation of the thesis, supporting points and conclusion.
- Acquire an ability to paraphrase prose and poetry.
- Identify the importance of synthesis and apply it to various genres.
- Write a review of a film, novel or other genre.
- Cite documentation of bibliographical/reference sources (traditional or electronic) following the MLA style and incorporate these into essays or paragraphs correctly.

3. Listening/Speaking

- a. Present personal points of view to class for consideration and debate.
- b. React to comments made by other students and/or the professor on topics being discussed:

4. Critical thinking

- c. Identify and compare logical fallacies
- d. Develop an ability to understand and think critically about literary texts as culturally situated artifacts that serve various cultural, social and political purposes.
- e. Form opinions and create arguments as part of an ongoing debate on topics related to class work.
- f. Draw patterns or relationships between the works discussed in class and their connection to “real” life.

B) Nonfiction (specific skills will be treated as with drama above)

- a. Distinguish nonfiction from other genres and consider its place in literature.
- b. Analyze essays, biographical resources and the news media (printed, electronic and the World Wide Web).
- c. Research topics of current importance, to review data, come to conclusions, and present reports
